BOYS' WORK PLANS DISCUSSED BY MEN

Brotherhood of Fort Atkinson Meets; Women's Club Day Tuesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Fort Atkinson—On Monday night occurred the monthly Brotherhood meeting of the Methodist church held in the church parlors. A 6:30 banquet was served after which addresses were given on subjects pertaining to the work of the church. About 75 were present. The subject of the evening was "What to do for the boys of the city." The last two monthly meetings have discussed this same question. The speakers of the present meeting were L. J. Jeffords, one of the high school teachers and Attorney A. L. Stengel of this city. At the last meeting President Hyer of the Whitewater Normal school discussed the problem. The movement is launched in order to arouse sympathy and interest in the welfare of the boys to provide suitable amusements and to combat in some degree the evil influences and bad habits. The plan was in charge of Mr. E. H. Miller, former high school superintendent. Glenn Venzburg is the president of the Brotherhood.

BONDS OR TAX FOR BONUS, IS PROBLEM NOW BEFORE G. O. P.

approximately twenty-five billion dollars.

For Liberty's Depreciation.
The financiers at the treasury fear that to add a billion and a half to America's total debt by borrowing through bonds would be to depreciate the value of all Liberty bonds and to make the American dollar worthless just as much less because of the added burden of debt imposed on America's resources. To the argument that the bond market can readily absorb the new issue, officials say there are doubts but that if now government bonds are issued, just so much money which would have been available to private business as a stimulus to industrial revival will be cut off and normally delayed. The business interests of the country stare this view in the main and are opposing the bonus both and and particularly a bond issue. Ever since the war has been mentioned, on the other hand, the avalanche of protests has been growing in volume. Senators and members of the house are literally swamped with letters and telegrams opposing any more taxes.

Political Effect.
The political effect of further taxation would be widely distributed. Members of congress know this and realize that the damaging effects of a bond issue would not be so readily dissipated. There must be argument about whether the bond issue caused a slump but with so many economic factors in the situation, the exact responsibility would not be so easy to locate. And besides, the full effect of a bond issue might not be felt until after the congressional elections because only $300,000,000 would be borrowed at a time, and that Mrs. Stensvad, Stoughton, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Hyne and family.

WIZARD OF MOTOR MECHANICS TELLS OF NEW WONDERS

Today was "to study all that had been known about the subject, and then go just the opposite way." Our present day business situation is one of psychology," stated Mr. Ketterling. "People are waiting for business to come back to normal. They say the normal basis is what it used to be some time in the past."

"Business must go forward. It is the backward looking aspect that is holding us back in a dormant condition. As a matter of fact new foundations are being laid on which the future business is to be established."

"You never will hear the band play at the old grounds."

The speaker then pointed out that the entire economic situation had been changed for the scientific world during the war and had been merged by a common problem with an exchange of ideas.

"Highly versed in science," viewed things in a different light and now see the necessity of meeting new conditions," stated Mr. Ketterling.

Over Production Ability.
"The trouble with the United States right now is over capacity for production," without adequate markets because the export agencies cease to function. Money is not the basis of foreign exchange. Rather it is the relative value of goods in one country to that of goods made in another country. Gold is not the true basis."

"If we are ever going to utilize our over capacity, production created during the war period, we must have export trade or develop new utilities which can successfully replace the old on the commercial market."

True scientific education, it was stated, was not obtained from special lines of study, but rather a general knowledge of the basic fundamentals for a practical analysis of scientific facts. "No one can become a good specialist without first becoming a good generalist and technical training is nothing but fundamental knowledge of the facts of nature that can be fabricated into useful utilities as the case in use now. The trouble inventions, such as the telegraph, electric lights, Mr. Ketterling told his audience that there was no limit to scientific possibilities. The relation of an inventor to all things was shown and that the world for power was using only stored sunlight in the form of wood, coal and fuel oils.

"Man is the only unfinished work of the creator," there has been a conflict between intelligence and instinct and that is the story of history. Right now there are some people who want to stay right where they are—not far forward but "stick around" and wait for normal times to come back—when they should be looking forward to making better than even normal times in business."

COUNCIL TURNS TURTLE ON SALARY QUESTION

Mayor Welsh in bringing up the Mayor's salary matter. There was a lot of misinformation going around and I was informed there was a lot of stuff in the voice of the people. I talked the matter over with a number of citizens, the board of health and Dr. Woodworth, and gave it a careful thought. Finally, deciding that maybe the council had acted a little too hastily a week ago, I had sworn I would get Dr. Woodworth, but I want to deny that right now and say that in all my official capacity, I have never engaged in personalities over city affairs.

I want to state my belief that there was no intention of the council to reflect on any organization. We all sympathize with the addition of Dr. Woodworth, but we were fixing the salary for the office, not the man.

The mayor went on to tell of the extensive work done to perfect and finally pass a milk ordinance, declaring that the milk ordinance, which the council provided money for a testing and inspection, had been a dead letter for over a year. He continued, "Now, for this new ordinance, I have been through the press that the health board has decided to have Dr. Woodworth added to the staff, and I am fixing himself for it. With this additional work on Dr. Woodworth, I believe he should have a salary commensurate with his duties."

Della Gives Her Story—"Although I don't wish to ignore any citizen or organization," Dr. Woodworth said, "I think we should show the people that we are fair about anything."

To Alderman Jensen's query, "What are the mayor's then read the petitions, including one from the Royal Neighbors."

Dr. Woodworth seems to be "pretty well taken care of" and that there are several other applicants for the position. Alderman Dulin entered the controversy at this point.

Look After Other Vets—"My own son went across and the ex-soldiers with him. I go just as much as they do. I don't like the idea of the press coming out and criticizing us for this action. I understand Dr. Woodworth is $90 a month, and his wife gets $125 a month for teaching school."

"What's that got to do with it?" interrupted Alderman Jensen.

"Never mind, I've got the floor now," returned Mr. Dulin. "Some of the other soldiers, although I haven't got a thing against Dr. Woodworth, I have seen him in the street. I don't like the idea of the press coming out and criticizing us for this action. I understand Dr. Woodworth is $90 a month, and his wife gets $125 a month for teaching school."

Dulla's 'Big Blunder'—Following the Dulin amendment to the Helms motion, Mr. Jensen explained his motion, "I am explaining my motion to 'quit to get the drift'."

"A week ago I noticed that he put into the council his hands and have a report made back on that," said Mr. Jensen. "I don't know that he has avoided this, but it's a poor time to try to patch it all up now. When Alderman Dulin opposed the delay a week ago, he made one of the biggest political blunders in the history of Janesville and there interrupted Mayor Welsh."

"On the contrary, I think it's very proper," "Mistake" Admitted.

More discussion in which Alderman Dulin denied that he had made a mistake might have been made last week, but no one seemed to care to commit, and with the agreement to meet informally, Friday night, in the city office, and the other great American, George Washington, discussed.

BOARD WILL RUSH H. S. TO COMPLETION

cripple the city in any department." Ald. L. D. Horn made the motion to provide $30,000 now.

Alderman E. M. Hanson and E. J. Kelly reported the finance committee's decision that this much could be provided by cutting several items. The mayor suggested it might be necessary to touch the park fund for money.

$7,000 for Plumbing—The latest bid for the plumbing work made by the American Heating company, Superior, for $7,123.40, which is $7,000 less than their bid in alternatives in material used, this may be reduced to $5,913.27. Bids opened two months ago showed J. Cullen and Son had the lowest bid for this work, $32,431. The Janesville engineers claimed an error of $400. This would have brought their bid up to $32,931. Patrick Curley, Milwaukee, made the lowest bid, $29,900 in December. The Cullen firm was allowed to withdraw its bid on these grounds and bid on the plumbing work at $29,900. The Curley firm was allowed to bring the net to $33,157. Other bids were Wenzel Henschel, Milwaukee, $24,851; and Patrick Curley, Milwaukee, $24,157.

Lowest bidder for the tile work is Greer and Butler, Milwaukee, $12,450; marble, Walter Salmon, Milwaukee, $17,230; and terrazzo, American Marble and Granite Co., Milwaukee, $18,674. Other bidders were: Brudner Marble Co., Milwaukee, marble, $15,500; tile, $14,000; and terrazzo, $20,000; National Granite Co., Eau Claire, $12,500; tile, $14,000; and terrazzo, $20,000; the work, Joseph P. Devitt, Milwaukee, $12,500; tile, $14,000; and terrazzo, $20,000; and the Co., $19,740; terrazzo, $20,000.

Through re-advertising, this board has saved $2,000. Through cutting on the marble, lost $200 on the terrazzo and $1,484.27 on the plumbing work, all of which the board has saved. Some of the cost of the terrazzo work several hundred dollars may be saved.

To Act Saturday—Action on the proposed plan probably will be taken at the adjourned meeting of the board to be held at the high school at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

The first time in years, a monthly meeting was held in the afternoon. Monday's board did routine business.

Meyers Challenges Riley-Ward Held to Draw by Jawson

LOCAL PROMOTERS MAY CLOSE DEAL WITH BOTH BOXERS

Roy L. Meyers, local fight promoter, Tuesday issued a challenge to Charles L. Riley, another local fighter, for a match on the 14th of February at the Janesville Athletic club. The challenge comes to the attention of the Gazette and reads:

"Following to your article in your paper about Charles Riley wanting to box Jack Kentling, I wish to state in behalf of Roy Meyers that he will be out to fight with him. I have asked quite a few fans about this match and they say it would be a better drawing card than the other match."

Favors the Match.

When President McKente of the local club was queried Tuesday, he said:

"I would like to see the match go through. I have talked with Riley about it, but he wants to fight Keating first. I think a Meyers-Riley fight would draw a better crowd."

Meyers, weighing 145 lbs., is a match for Riley, who is 140 lbs. In his January appearance here at 147, Meyers has not been in any ring since his defeat a year ago at the hands of Omaha (Kid) Schaeffer at the Myers theater.

Jawson's Work Toward Close Staggers Bobby

Bobby Ward of St. Paul, formerly of Beloit, met a snafu in Youngstown, Ohio, Saturday night. The Gateway city scrapper, who won here from Rattling Ben, found the reputation of Jawson has not been overestimated.

For the first four rounds Ward had everything his own way. Then Jawson got on to Bobby's ways and sailed in. The last four rounds were a close fight. Jawson was too much for the former Beloit veteran, and he connected with long rights to the body in the closing stanzas. The close quarters combat ended with Jawson from his hands not and headwork.

Jawson drew blood in the ninth and tenth.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Much Depends on Catcher Says Causey on Leaving Here to Join Giants

By FRANK SINCLAIR.

"The catcher is the greatest asset to any ball club and from what the Giants have this year, you can count on McGraw's club coming through with the pennant and the world's championship again."

This was the positive statement of W. C. Causey, pitcher, just before he left here to join the New York Nationals at Hot Springs, for the spring training trip. They will then go to San Antonio, Texas. Causey has been wintering here with A. L. Mac of the Coliseum club. His home is in Florida, but he elected a colder climate for a change.

Need the Giants.

"Good catchers are scarce and hard to find," he declared. "There are many who are good receivers and good throwers, but few with brains back of them."

"In my experience, I have worked 20 ball games to one catcher in the National league. That was Lew Cuddy, formerly of the Giants, and now of Kansas City. I lost only one of them."

"The Giants this season will have Snyder, Smith and Gaston. This aggregation is the best catching staff in the league. All can hit, throw and receive and are brainy. With a pitching staff that will come through, there is no chance in the world of stopping the Giants."

"A pitcher who loses 10 games with the Giants this year don't deserve to be called a pitcher. McGraw has not together one of the best ball clubs ever put on the diamond."

Praises Herk Hanks.

Asked for his opinion of the value of the system of signaling the pitcher and catcher from the bench on what to serve the batter, Causey said: "I think it is a good idea. Herk Hanks is the greatest in the world. The reason is simple. A man on the bench can sit and see things in the game that the pitcher or catcher cannot possibly see. McGraw's catcher is the smartest man in baseball today."

Causey's home is in Ft. Mead, Fla. His initial baseball experience was with his home town semi-pro team in the Phosphate league.

Joined Giants in '17.

He joined the Giants in the spring of 1917 from Waco, Texas, in the Texas league, where he helped win the pennant with 19 victories and 10 defeats. He didn't go regular in 1917 and was sent to Rochester in the International league.

In 1918, he won seven straight games for the Giants, finishing the season with 11 wins and 6 losses. The league quit early that year on account of the World war.

In '19 he started out and won eight straight. "Slim" Sale beat him the ninth game in Cincinnati, 3 to 2, on Friday, the 13th. A month afterward he was traded to Boston for Knott and finished the season in the Hub. He refused to report back to Boston in 1920 because he did not like the climate.

Undergoes Operation.

Causey was held to Philadelphia in 1920, playing with the National league club of that city until July, 1921, when he was traded back to the New York Nationals. His arm was bad in 1921 and his season was poor as a result.

At the close of last season, he signed again with the Giants, leaving here, he said he is looking forward to a great year since having his tonsils and adenoids taken out by a local physician.

"I hope to return to Janesville next year," he said on leaving. "I like the town and the people."

Beloit College Grabs Title of the Mid-West

Slewing through Carleton at regular intervals and looking the Minnesota team back of the free throw line with marvelous defensive tactics, Beloit college clinched the mid-west collegiate basketball title at the Gateway city Monday night, 21 to 14. It was Carleton's first defeat in two years and the ninth straight win of the season for the Gold Grads who were turned away from the gym, unable to get in.

Coach Miller Beloit squad set a top speed pace in the opening minute when a snappy pass from the jump enabled Jimmy Saffin to cage the initial field goal. Carleton tried to raise the sphere back into Gold territory only to meet with as perfect a first-man defense as developed by any central west college this year, a wall which was penetrated only three times during the entire 40 minutes of play.

'B to 6 at Half Time.

For the rest of the half, it was the same with Beloit constantly snatching the ball from the Gopher crew and whizzing it in crisp-cross and lateral passes down the floor with lightning velocity. The count at half time was 9 to 5, Beloit.

Running the score to 22-10 was the best Carleton could do. However, the Minnesota team was unable to stand the thundering rapidity of the Gold attack. After 15 minutes of the second half, Carleton tried to hold the Beloit score down and resorted to long shots in wild attempt to change the tide.

Beloit Gets Jump.

Beloit's victory was due to getting the jump first and setting her defense before Carleton started its offense. The third in playing as good basketball this year as the Big Ten conference.

McLuiffe, McGaw and "Spinner" Connel were Beloit's stars. The "Spinner" ending three baskets in five minutes on the floor. Tuesday, Ritten and Nordy were Carleton's satellites.

It gives me pleasure to announce that the picture playing for three days, tonight and tomorrow matinee and evening, "The Woman in His House" is the best picture by far shown in Janesville this week. In it may be seen an all-star cast featuring Mildred Harris and Thomas Holding. I can heartily recommend this picture to patrons of the Apollo, being one that they will like. The Itinerant Center of News

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—Specialized newspaper reporting of events in Washington has supplanted the former custom of an itinerant center of activity on the floors of the house and senate. At times during the past 15 years nine-tenths of the newspaper space devoted to the national capital was given to the speeches on Capitol Hill. Nowadays, however, the center of news writing is the president and his cabinet.

Theodore Roosevelt did more to bring about this change than anybody else. When he became president, the change from a peace-loving chief executive to one who loved nothing better than a fight turned the attention of the writers from "the Hill" to the White House, where there was always news afoot. Not alone was it a relief to them to get away from the dull accounts of what went on in the house and senate, but the substitution of fiery words for these made better reading and more enjoyable work.

Where many papers and all the news services once carried every day a summary of the sessions of the house and senate that was from one to four columns in length, they now have special stories on only the principal occurrences there. A. J. Halford was the last of old-time reporters at the capital. He made copies of debates and individual speeches in the house and his stories in the New York Sun portrayed the vocal efforts of the national legislators. With his death, passed the system once so general.

There are seats on the senate and house floors for representatives of the news services, but these are occupied by newspaper men nowadays only when the president addresses congress or something of tremendous importance is being debated and voted upon. The pages use their throughout the remainder of the sessions.

Mr. Roosevelt sensed the usefulness of the press and he always had a story for them. Monday—the duldest news and advertising day—there always was plenty of space in them for whatever he had to say. Roosevelt's cabinet caught the spirit of their chief, making teams of "copy" for the newspapers. This condition naturally turned the eyes of the country from the legislative to the executive end of Pennsylvania avenue and almost threw into the background the congressional side of Washington.

With the incoming of Mr. Taft, the press had more of a holiday than for the seven years previous, so far as exciting news from the White House was concerned. The reporters were back to Capitol Hill, but they sought individual stories. The Ballinger-Pinchot controversy took their attention for some months, but even that did not measure up to the former hectic days when every morning brought forth a new nominee for Annals club membership.

It was the announced intention of Woodrow Wilson to hold two conferences with the newspaper men each week. This took them back to the White House again. Later, however, Mr. Wilson stopped this practice, but his cabinet members saw them often, and generally had something interesting to say. In fact, one of the official family confided to them differences he was having with other members.

"I know this won't be published," he said, "and since I must tell it to someone and would not dare speak of it to any of the administration, I'm telling you boys about it." It was never printed.

Only when President Wilson addressed Congress was the press gallery filled and the same holds true today when President Harding goes there to deliver his message in person.

With the advent of the United States into the world war came the augmentation of writers in the national capital. Papers had representatives not only to "cover" special assignments at the capital, but to handle the White House news, to be present at the conferences in the executive branches of the government as well as to write other special articles. Washington was the capital of the world for more than two years, or until Mr. Wilson sailed for France in December, 1918.

When this country declared war, there immediately were created a number of press agencies in the government departments. Their number gained as the war went on. Few of them have disappeared. They are in charge of former newspaper men and men out, daily enough material to fill the columns of the ordinary newspaper.

Specializing on features of the work coming under the department or bureau with which they are connected is the duty of these agencies.

In the winter of 1918, the eyes of the world were focused on Paris and its peace conference. Thither traveled many Washington correspondents and many of them remained until the return of President Wilson at the conclusion of the treaty at Versailles. Those who remained in the national capital spent most of their time at the senate, where every move made at Paris had its reflection.

With the return of President Wilson, interest remained on Capitol Hill for a time; then it went across the continent with Mr. Wilson on his tour in advocacy of the peace treaty. Congress held a minor place on the stage.

Since the defeat of the treaty in the senate, there have been not more than a dozen occasions when the press galleries of either house were filled to capacity. The reason is not that the legislative halls do not provide as good news as they once did, but that the executive branches of the government usually provided better stories.

What is more, most newspapers devote the energies of their writers here to a general rule, to the affairs of the state and district in which they are printed. They depend upon the press associations for the stories on congress, while the Washington writers concern themselves more with the actions of their individual legislators.

Except when some members of congress hurl an ink bottle at another member, the average correspondent is too busily occupied with other matters even to pause in his work.

Here is an illustration: Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes was summoned to appear before a house sub-committee investigating some phase of the war. He saw the newspaper men before he went to the committee room and told them there would be interesting things there. When he appeared he delivered himself of a torrent of invective against those who sought to detract from the efficiency of the American war methods. It made "good copy" and there were columns of it in every paper in the country. Later somebody asked him why he had used profanity.

"I wanted to get the story and my position on it in every newspaper," answered Dawes. "So I swore a little and millions of people read it. Had I not used that mild profanity, nobody would have known I was in Washington."

All of which illustrates that even big people at home frequently are not heard about on their visits here. It is a far cry from the last few weeks of President Cleveland's administration when he rarely was asked to see anybody except his private secretary and Queen Lili, of Hawaii, who was calling continually for some action assuring that island kingdom the protection of the United States.

which is equity and equity is more than law—it is justice.

Getting up at 6 o'clock and trying the liver and onions for husband will take a large chunk of the romance out of the marriage of millions with a cottage.

The democratic party has hope that the old ship of state will not be scrapped until November when they will run her on the dry dock and make the necessary repairs.

Seriously the first break in the cabinet seems to be an easy fall.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

CLINCHING THE BOLT

It needed just an extra turn to make the bolt secure. A few more minutes on the job and then the work was done. The extra turn, and when the task was through.

The man was back for more repairs in just a day or two. Two men there are in every place, and one is a man for to work.

The other gives the extra turn to every bolt that's there. One man is slipshod in his work and eager to be quit.

The other never leaves a task until he's sure of it. The difference 'twixt good and bad is not so very much.

A few more minutes at the task, an extra turn or touch. A final test that all is right—and yet the men are few.

Who seem to think it worth their while these extra things to do. The poor man knows as well as does the good man how to work.

But one takes pride in every task, the other likes to shirk. With just as little as he can, one seeks his pay to earn.

The good man always gives the bolt that clinching extra turn.

THE DOG.

This fellow sits up nights to think what he can make his patients drink to cure them of their ills. He fills a glass with hard dope, that tastes like coal tar mixed with soap, to alternately threaten them and there you are, with unconquerable courage, he'll take a bowl.

With chloroform upon a towel, he chooses attempts to "scream." He says, "Oh, my, you will not mind. I'll aim to be so very kind," and then proceeds to trim the fellow's hair with a pair of scissors. He gives a million could you own one chance to wiggle him. But you are anchored to the table, bound around with two men cable, and so what change have you? You may as well sink back and groan and let him cut and scumpe the bone, until he says he's through.

HINTS TO LOVELOVED GENTS

If she makes a practice of eating onions for supper, every time you call, it is a sign she is indifferent toward you.

If you spend a lot of money sending flowers to her every day, it may make a hit with her, but she will marry somebody who has more sense.

Don't talk to her about love in a cottage. Talk about a $10.00 house and she'll spring the collar tag on her after you get her.

If she is handsome tell her about it, and if she isn't tell her anyway.

Have an automobile catalogue in your pocket where she can catch a glimpse of it.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

NOW IS THE TIME

Along about Valentine time I always feel particularly sorry for those poor souls who depend on golf for exercise. And worse still, along comes my old friend Chick Evans, the greatest golfer that ever worried a puny little bird over the pasture lot, and then the old coddler up by assuring them that a daily half hour of indoor golf is about as good a physical training as the Brady Symphony. Alas, even Chick slides "em some more."

But now let us chuck Chick and come to the point. Exercise which is to be of permanent and lasting and certain benefit must be taken every day in the year, not just in certain seasons or on certain days when conditions happen to be agreeable. Exercise daily is quite as essential for perfect health as is washing the hands, and people who neglect to exercise are quite as unclean physically as people who are personally who omit washing the hands before eating, and quite as much endangered by disease. Exercise does not really consist in fast, strenuous work, but it increases the absorption of oxygen, the great ditch cleaner of the blood and tissues. If more people could be prevailed upon to take more exercise many days per annum there would be a tremendous falling off in the nation's sick list.

I've revived the Brady Symphony and added two new movements, both of which, necessarily, since they come near the end of the piece. For the benefit of readers who let me explain that my symphony, so named by an enthusiastic reader, is a series of body building exercises for home use. Warranted harmless and will put pep in your bones. It takes about 15 minutes to follow it 15 minutes daily. The symphony is no joke, as any one knows who has played it for a year or more; it is very lively and difficult. I will gladly send this symphony to any reader who wishes to try it on his old metabolism and doesn't forget the stamped, addressed envelope.

Q. Are there many pure blooded negroes in the United States?

A. Among the 8,000,000 negroes as shown in the census of 1921, the population of pure blooded Africans is comparatively small.

Q. Is it true that the first use of perfumery was in connection with religious ceremonies?

A. The first official mention of the use of perfumery seems to be in the 26th chapter of Exodus, 34th verse, containing the formula for the holy anointing oil to be used by the priests of the tabernacle of the Jews. This perfume consisted of "sweet spices, stacte, onycha, and galbanum." These were all aromatic herbs, or gums.

Q. Do they have thunder and lightning in Los Angeles?

A. The weather bureau says that thunderstorms do occur at that place, although they are infrequent and usually of a mild character.

Q. What part of an automobile is most dangerous when the car is moving?

A. Theoretically speaking there is only one part of an automobile that is stationary when the car is moving. The part of the tire on the ground is constant because it is touching the ground at that instant.

Q. How did the city of Keokuk, Ia. get its name?

A. The city was named after Moses Keokuk, an American Indian. He was chief of the Sac-Fox confederation.

Q. What fish are known as sardines?

A. In America, a small fish of the herring family canned in oil are known as sardines, while in England only the pilchard canned in oil is recognized as a sardine.

Q. Has there ever been a time when winter didn't blow over Niagara Falls?

A. The winter of 1847-48 was so extraordinarily severe in the country that heavy ice formed in Lake Erie. When it was broken up, during the latter part of March, the winds swept the ice into the entrance of the Niagara river at Buffalo, where it jammed into a solid mass, completely choking the outlet of Lake Erie, with the result that on March 20, 1848, the falls of Niagara were practically dry.

Q. Are there more single women or single men in the United States?

A. D. G. In 1920, considering the people of the United States 15 years of age and over, there were more single males than females. The percentage of single men was 35.1 and of single women 27.3.

Q. Are as many people annulling themselves of postal savings facilities as there were A. I. A.

A. On June 30, 1921, there was $152,389,903 on deposit as postal savings. This was a decrease of about $25,000,000 from the amount on deposit June 30, 1920.

Q. What is the roof of the world?

A. The expression "roof of the world" is applied to the Pamir plateau in central Asia. Its Persian name has this significance.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

George Morton goes to work at the home of Planter, a rich man, when his father dies. He becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job goes to Sylvia Planter when she is thrown from her horse and thinking her unconscious, George kisses her, calling out that he loves her. She awakes him from the place and George threatens her brother, who goes to horsehip him, but in a fall fight, he seeks an education at Princeton, meets Bailey, a tutor, gets a place on the football team and aids his college with from Harvard. He has determined that Sylvia Planter shall marry him and that he will win the breach between them. But he continues in the determination. Betty Allison is very kind to George and at her home meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing.

"It must be comforting," he heard her say to Goodhue, "to know if trouble comes your wonderful firm will be taken care of."

George guessed she had meant him to hear that.

"I hope so," Goodhue answered her, "but what do you mean?"

"I heard Mr. Morton say once he didn't think he'd care to go to war. Didn't I, Mr. Morton?"

Goodhue, clearly puzzled by her manner, laughed.

"Give us something more useful, Sylvia. He's a born fighter."

"I believe I said it," George answered her. "There might be problems here I couldn't very well desert."

Her eyes widened. He recalled her hysterical manner that evening at Oakmont. She still sought chances to hurt him. In spite of Blodgett, then, she recognized a state of contentment between them. He smiled contentedly, for as long as that persisted his cause was alive.

NVII

It languished, however, during the winter as did Blodgett's hopes of a speedy wedding. The Planter's Fifth Avenue home remained closed, because of Mr. Planter's health. Sylvia

Dinner Stories

William Allen White, the Kansas editor, was talking about droughts. "One summer, during a terrible drought," he said, "a tourist was passing through a town so dried up that even the trees had yellowed and withered."

"Does it never rain here?" the tourist said to the landlord of the hot duster hole.

"Rain?" said the landlord. "Why, stranger, there's five-year-old buildings in this town that ain't never learned to swim yet."

A farmer in the cotton belt of South Carolina was motoring along a lively city in his four-wheeled dollar touring car, and as he turned into his private driveway that leads up to his sumptuous home a boll weevil hopped up on his shoulder and said, "Let me drive a little."

"Aw, come on. Let me drive!" repeated the boll weevil.

"Nothing doing."

"Right as well let me drive your old car," retorted the boll weevil, "as let me go to take it, any how, next year."

"How did you get on with spelling?" Harry's mother asked him, after his first day at school. "You look so pleased that I'm sure you did well."

"I couldn't spell much of any thing," admitted Harry, "and I couldn't remember the arithmetic very well, nor the geography."

"The mother showed her disappointment, but Harry had consolation in reserve.

"But that's no matter," mother, he said, "the boys admire me; they say I've got the biggest feet in the class."

NORTH AMERICAN PECULIARITIES

The dim light of the speeding train revealed the chair-car passengers in a weird grotesque contortions. It was after midnight. Two men were not sitting side by side, and a girl sitting side by side. She was protesting against the boy's determination to get off the train at the next station. The boy, however, was determined to get off the train at the next station. The girl had missed a train connection and was eight hours late. Her aunt was an old woman living in a farmhouse and she would not wait at the station all night.

"Of course I'm a stranger to you but that doesn't make any difference," whispered the boy. "I would want a fellow to do the same thing for a sister or mine. You are worried sick about staying in that little depot all night alone—do you know you are? I'll go with you. I'm going to get off with you."

The one old lamp in the village depot shed a feeble yellow light on the boy and girl sitting side by side. He had piled their suitcases so that their feet had a rest. In the release from conventions that sleep brings, she had fallen toward him until her head rested on his shoulder. Gently he removed her hat, to make her more comfortable, and spread part of his overcoat about her.

"He was aroused from a dose by a heavy snoring," she murmured. "What's your name, kid?" asked an uncompromising voice.

"The boy rubbed his face and then was conscious of her hand on his other shoulder. "Sh-h-h, you will awaken her," he cautioned the disturber.

"Well, I'm going to get to her in a minute," said the man. "What are you doing here? I represent the police."

"Well, this young lady is a friend of mine, and she is waiting for her aunt, and I'm waiting for her."

"Aunt know about this?"

"Yes," lied the boy, to end the cross-examination.

"That ain't so, and you know it ain't. Here's the girl's aunt this minute. Some skull-duggery here, and you're going to answer to the judge in the morning."

She had fallen toward him until her head rested on his shoulder.

"Jail?" cried the girl. "You're wrong. You've made a terrible mistake. Why, why are we to be married?"

The constable sniffed. "Why didn't you say so in the first place? All this bother about nothing."

A friendly light came into the aunt's eyes as she turned away.

"What's your name?" whispered the girl to the boy. "I'm sorry I had to say that."

"Arthur Blake," he whispered back, "and I'm not so little scared as you might be. I would be mighty glad to go through with it."

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

A MISSING VISITOR

"What business have you, Mr. Snake, coming up here to disturb us in the midst of the night?" asked Tinker Bob fearfully.

There was a hissing sound again, and a fiery tongue darted out of the serpent's mouth. Surprised at the fearless manner in which Tinker Bob asked and at being able to understand what the King said, the fellow remained silent for a moment.

"Well, why don't you answer me? I don't know I could talk to you and what you here for?" asked Tinker Bob.

"Tinker understood the hissing voice as the serpent spoke. 'You are in my tree,' he said.

"How do I know that this is your tree?" I didn't see you when I came here this afternoon. Why didn't you come and tell me then instead of now?"

"I was asleep all day long and when I awoke I saw this strange thing hanging from my house," said the serpent.

"Who gave you this tree?" asked Tinker Bob.

"This tree belonged to my grandfather. He got it from a monkey family."

"How did he get it?" asked Tinker Bob.

"He drove the monkeys away from here after he killed their father and mother and it has been ours ever since."

"Well, what's your name?" asked Tinker again.

"They call me Dart Snake, because I live in the tree and drop down on to those who pass by beneath."

"Why do you do that?" asked the King Of The Forest.

"This is my tree and I have a right to do it and I'll do that very thing to you and that monkey if you don't get out of here."

"I was asleep all day long and when I awoke I saw this strange thing hanging from my house," said the serpent.

"Who gave you this tree?" asked Tinker Bob.

"I was asleep all day long and when I awoke I saw this strange thing hanging from my house," said the serpent.

"Now listen," said Tinker. "I'm the King Of The Forest and I'm not afraid of your doing anything." But Silky was afraid.

"Is that so?" ejaculated Mr. Dart Snake, and he darted. But Tinker had tapped the Stone Of Knowledge, and the poor fellow was caught in the window by his head and carried by the Magic Basket far over the jungle. Suddenly the basket gave a jerk which sent Mr. Dart Snake sailing down, down, into the middle of a slimy pond of water, and Silky was relieved of his fright. After that he remembered to keep the window closed even when the basket was hanging in a tree.

Wednesday—A Creature With a Plan. The Snake and the Monkey. Each side.

Pretty when she wakes up

Cleopatra's way

With a world of ancient beauty arts at her command, she depended on cleansing with Palm and Olive oils to protect, improve and preserve the freshness and smoothness of her skin.

This beautifying was not confined to face alone. The bath was a daily ceremonial with all ancient peoples, palm and olive oils the cleansers used.

Bathe with Palmolive and keep your skin smooth and white. It is a luxury all can afford.

This is the real test. The girl who wakes fresh and radiant with a clear, smooth skin which has no defects to conceal, need not worry about her looks. She possesses the greatest of all attractions—the one which outshines all others.

This need not discourage the girl whose complexion is not so good. Proper care will soon transform a bad skin into one admired for its perfection.

Get rid of the clogging accumulations which cause coarseness and disfiguring defects and you will soon be complimented on your fresh blooming complexion.

The secret is simple and about 3,000 years old. It was discovered in ancient Egypt and practiced by Cleopatra.

Simple—Beautifying

The remedy for a coarse skin, for the disfigured with blackheads or ugly blotches, is daily cleansing with a lather blended from palm and olive oils.

Such a cleanser is so mild and soothing that it softens the skin and keeps it smooth. But it removes the accumulation of dirt, oil and perspiration which are responsible for most bad complexions.

You can't neglect your skin and expect to keep it blooming and alluring. The powder and rouge you use to conceal defects deceive no one.

The soothing cleanser

Palmolive is the modern combination of the same beautifying cosmetic oils Cleopatra used in the days of ancient Egypt. It is just as valuable today as a safe soothing cleanser.

Massage its smooth, creamy lather softly into the network of tiny pores which compose the surface of your skin. It will remove the clogging deposits which enlarge these pores, cause blackheads and invite blotches.

Dry skins are benefited by cold cream after cleansing. If unusual dryness is your trouble, apply a little cream before as well as after washing.

Popularity—Low price

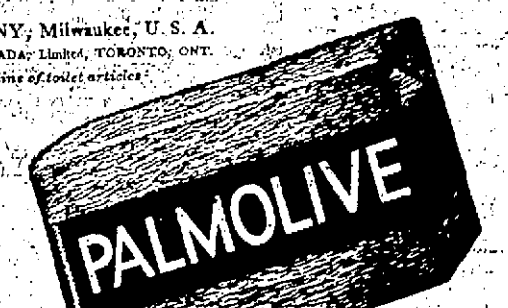

Judge Palmolive by other soaps and you will expect to pay at least 25 cents a cake. But the popularity which keeps the Palmolive factories working day and night naturally reduces cost. Quantity production is always economical.

Thus this finest facial soap is offered at 10 cents a cake—a price all can afford. You can economically use Palmolive for every toilet purpose, for it costs no more than ordinary soap.
